Dear Bill,

For the past forty-three years, the Junior Statesmen program has helped train outstanding high school students for responsible leadership in public affairs. In California, where the Summer School is based, the program is well-established and widely respected; having helped prepare many men and women who now occupy important positions in civic leadership.

This July and August, the Junior Statesmen Foundation will again sponsor a three-week summer school session in Washington. One hundred outstanding West Coast high school students have been selected to participate in this non-partisan program. Their curriculum includes a rigorous academic introduction to American government, supplemented by student debates on national issues, a research project and speakers from Capitol Hill and several Executive Agencies. Also, students will again have the opportunity to meet and question national leaders in informal discussion groups.

Through many years of involvement with the Junior Statesmen Summer School, I have found it to be a unique and worthwhile educational program. I hope that your schedule will allow time with the visiting students this year.

Sincerely,
